

POLICE GATHER CROP OF CROOKS

Richmond Day Evildoers Fall Into the Toils for Minor Offenses.

MIDWAY FAKER IN TROUBLE

Operator of Sure-Thing Ticket Game Fined $50 and Told to Beat It.

Richmond Day, like its predecessors, grew its regular crop of evildoers. Between forty and fifty names graced the police blotter at the two State Fair police stations when the sergeants closed shop for the night. Most of these were registered for minor infractions, disorderly conduct and drunk being the charge most frequently entered.

The sneak thief and pickpocket crop was light. At the city police station W. T. Leavelle, of Hilde P. O. Va., reported that his hip pocket was picked of $130 in bills, the largest robbery reported during the day. Wallace Bruce, of this city, lost $20 by the same route, and L. L. Velnes, of Raynor, Va., reported the loss of a gold watch and chain valued at $45.

Back at the Old Game.
Ollie Jefferson, a fourteen-year-old negro girl, was arrested by the county police upon complaint of a white woman, who charged her with snatching her purse containing $1.65. Ollie, according to the police, is an old offender, and figured recently in a similar case, in which she secured a handbag from a woman on Broad Street, while pretending to be adjusting her skirt. Together with another negro girl named McCrea, she was locked up in the County Jail.

The woman who made the charge declined to give her name, on the ground that she did not care for the publicity. The officers retained the purse, and it will be introduced in evidence next Monday, when the two girls will be given a hearing at the county courthouse.

Fakers in Trouble.

Louis Cohen, who gave his residence as Columbia, S. C., was arrested by the county police on the charge of operating a skin game in one of the concessions on the Midway. He was fined $50 and costs and told to get out of

"Berry's for Clothes"

There's a time for every time.

For a wet time here's a shoe in which you can put your foot with confidence—the Berry Cordovan; price, $5.

The celebrated Hanan Shoe, $6.50 and $7.

The Berry Shoe for boys is a direct and considerable saving in wear.

The only one hurt is the cobler, whose work is cut in half!

Prices, $2 to $3.

C. H. Dwyer

town. He put up the cash and agreed to leave Richmond at once. His outfit, consisting of several hundred numbered tickets and a trunkful of plated jewelry, was confiscated.

Charles Kojan and C. Miller, two other concessionaires, were arrested by the county officers on a similar charge. Both claimed to be from Coney Island. Neither could furnish the required bail, and both were sent to the County Jail. Friends subsequently came to the rescue and put up cash enough to procure their freedom for the night. They will be tried this morning at the county police station at the Fair Grounds.

Little Congestion in Traffic.

Despite the large crowds during the day, there was little actual congestion in traffic, the great throng of people drifting out and back without difficulty. At the street car terminals at the end of the fireworks last night, when approximately 10,000 people attempted to come to Richmond at the same time. Two women fainted in the rush, and for a time it was necessary for the police to stop traffic on the bridge until the area around the cars was partially cleared. Similarly there was some congestion last night at the large night crowd having exceeded expectations, but there was no serious trouble reported. Chief of Police Werner said he had never seen a more orderly or good-natured crowd. There were no arrests during the day, in the street car inclosure, and but few indications of drunkenness. Street railway inspectors said it was the best natured and most easily handled crowd they had ever seen. There were no street car accidents, no breakdowns, and no breakdowns in traffic.

Money Hauled to Bank.

Not only were there large gate receipts yesterday, but many of the holders of concessions on the grounds settled with the State Fair Association yesterday. The police patrol brought to the American National Bank early this morning between $35,000 and $40,000 as the gross receipts of the Fair Association yesterday. Of this $35,000 had been counted and tagged. The receipts from the bar and from many other sources was in bulk and will be counted and deposited this morning. The Police Department loaned the patrol wagon for the transfer of the money, and heavily guarded by armed officers, the valuable load was brought to bank about 1:15 A. M.

When car service was suspended at midnight, a special car was sent out from the barns for the ticket choppers, gamblers and inspectors, and it was estimated that fully $10,000 in money taken in by the street car company was handled on this car to the company's headquarters at the Reservation.

Several members and directors of the Fair Association last night expressed themselves as highly pleased with the great success of the day, and already extensive plans are on foot for alterations and improvements next year.

Crowd Had Only Wiggling Room on Richmond Day

(Continued From First Page.)

When Law began its carnival clamor for unattached spectators, attendance figures reached their highest point, and every estimate was a guess. On the Midway it was no longer possible to walk, and the best one could do was to follow meekly, Indian fashion, in the footsteps of one's front-row neighbor. One went with ally where the crowd went like a cork in a sure but slowly-moving current. The initiative and referendum was at a discount.

Fair Was At Its Best.

To do honor to Richmond Day, every department of the fair put its best foot forward and arranged itself in holiday attire. The racing card was the largest and hottest contested of the week, and the performers on the big stage in front of the grandstand included stunts which were not in the contract. The spirit of co-operation was in the air and everybody was intent upon adding to the day's entertainment.

The exhibit buildings held capacity

FAIR FIGURES BREAK RECORD

Attendance Conservatively Estimated at From 60,000 to 65,000 People.

BIG BUSINESS ON CAR LINES

Hauled More People Than Ever Before From Single Point in One Day.

Attendance records for a State Fair in Virginia were broken yesterday when a crowd conservatively estimated at between 60,000 and 65,000 people visited the grounds of the Virginia State Fair Association, the largest attendance by approximately 10,000 of any single day in any previous fair. More extravagant estimates placed the crowd at 80,000.

At midnight the registers at the Street car gates leading from the Fair Grounds showed a total of 41,726 fares brought back to Richmond. During the rush hours many people dropped tickets in the boxes and pushed through the gates more rapidly than the ticket choppers could register them. Superintendent of Terminals Herman Pollard, of the Virginia Railway and Power Company, said at midnight that when the tickets are counted it would be shown that his company had hauled more than 50,000 people from the grounds.

Some Comparisons.

On Richmond Day last year the street car company hauled from the grounds 40,315 people. The year before, when Ralph Johnston's aeroplane was the great attraction, the street car figures showed 41,777 fares, that being, until yesterday, the high watermark of the company's records, the largest number of people ever hauled from any one point in a single day. There may have been days, Mr. Pollard said, when the total number of fares throughout the city exceeded yesterday, but he doubted if there had been any.

On Tuesday the street car company hauled away from the grounds 15,673 people, as compared with 11,861 on the same day of the Fair last year. Monday's street car figures exceeded the first day of the Fair last year by ten fares.

M. Allen Chambers, of the Virginia State Fair Association, said last night that, judging from the cash and tickets taken in, the paid attendance yesterday had exceeded that of Richmond Day last year by approximately 10,000. The largely increased automobile travel was a matter of some comment, there being in operation several general passenger motor lines doing a general passenger business to and from the hotel.

Little Congestion in Traffic.

Despite the large crowds during the day, there was little actual congestion in traffic, the great throng of people drifting out and back without difficulty. At the street car terminals at the end of the fireworks last night, when approximately 10,000 people attempted to come to Richmond at the same time. Two women fainted in the rush, and for a time it was necessary for the police to stop traffic on the bridge until the area around the cars was partially cleared. Similarly there was some congestion last night at the large night crowd having exceeded expectations, but there was no serious trouble reported. Chief of Police Werner said he had never seen a more orderly or good-natured crowd. There were no arrests during the day, in the street car inclosure, and but few indications of drunkenness. Street railway inspectors said it was the best natured and most easily handled crowd they had ever seen. There were no street car accidents, no breakdowns, and no breakdowns in traffic.

Money Hauled to Bank.

Not only were there large gate receipts yesterday, but many of the holders of concessions on the grounds settled with the State Fair Association yesterday. The police patrol brought to the American National Bank early this morning between $35,000 and $40,000 as the gross receipts of the Fair Association yesterday. Of this $35,000 had been counted and tagged. The receipts from the bar and from many other sources was in bulk and will be counted and deposited this morning. The Police Department loaned the patrol wagon for the transfer of the money, and heavily guarded by armed officers, the valuable load was brought to bank about 1:15 A. M.

When car service was suspended at midnight, a special car was sent out from the barns for the ticket choppers, gamblers and inspectors, and it was estimated that fully $10,000 in money taken in by the street car company was handled on this car to the company's headquarters at the Reservation.

Several members and directors of the Fair Association last night expressed themselves as highly pleased with the great success of the day, and already extensive plans are on foot for alterations and improvements next year.

Crowd Had Only Wiggling Room on Richmond Day

(Continued From First Page.)

When Law began its carnival clamor for unattached spectators, attendance figures reached their highest point, and every estimate was a guess. On the Midway it was no longer possible to walk, and the best one could do was to follow meekly, Indian fashion, in the footsteps of one's front-row neighbor. One went with ally where the crowd went like a cork in a sure but slowly-moving current. The initiative and referendum was at a discount.

Fair Was At Its Best.

To do honor to Richmond Day, every department of the fair put its best foot forward and arranged itself in holiday attire. The racing card was the largest and hottest contested of the week, and the performers on the big stage in front of the grandstand included stunts which were not in the contract. The spirit of co-operation was in the air and everybody was intent upon adding to the day's entertainment.

The exhibit buildings held capacity crowd through the daylight hours. No display was humble enough to escape notice and none was big enough to appeal. An exhibition crowd in too hardened by monotony and staidness to gasp at anything. Ten acres of power machinery, shrieking and puffing with exploding gasolines, brought exclamations of surprise and admiration, but so did the old colored machine who sat all day in a sawing machine exhibit at the auditorium smoking a pipe.

Fletcher's Errors Help Sox.

Fletcher was broken-hearted to-night over his poor game at shortstop for New York. Two of his three glaring errors aided materially in the making of runs by the Red Sox.

Wagner started at short for Boston, accepting ten chances and executing a brilliant play in the ninth inning, when on the dead run he speared Fletcher's grounder with his gloved hand, turned and shot the throw, that Stahl also took with one hand, nailing Fletcher at first base. There was an unusual lot of base stealing in the game for a World's Series contest, five bases being pilfered. Of these Hooper stole two and Stahl one for the Red Sox, while Herzog and Snodgrass each beat Carrigan's throws. Hooper, for the Red Sox, has a field day. He knocked out three hits, stole two bases, scored once and gathered in three flies in the outfield.

Murray and Herzog were the heavy hitters for the Giants. Murray duplicated his telling work of yesterday with the stick by hammering out a single, a double and a triple. Herzog also got a single, a two-bagger and a three-base hit and went up a sacrifice, but he was out on a bunt.

Mathewson's control was perfect. He did not issue a base on balls and fanned four men. Doyle played a scintillating game at second for New York.

"We have stopped the Red Sox on their home grounds," said Manager unremittently shouting throughout the game, "and they are not going to get any more dollars for the Fair Association. The behavior of the sun on all-important Richmond Day is the one haunting Nemesis. To the ideal Indian summer weather largely was attributed the 15,000 or more increase in attendance over the big day of last year's Fair.

At night the thermometer fell no further, but the blue, star-lit sky predicted no disturbance, and augured well for the morrow. It was cool enough to put ginger into the Midway crowd, but not cold enough to congeal its hilarity. Ice cream cones were a staple article of diet, and the cold fizz waters sold well, few of the older men affected by colds, and a few women displayed furs—but they formed a cold-blooded minority.

Night Guard Was Enormous.

Throughout the afternoon the crowd stood six to ten deep against the rail enclosing the race-track. This was the case not only in the vicinity of the grandstand, but for three-fourths of the distance around the mile course. Viewed from the center, the whole area appeared to be enclosed by a continuous ring of humanity close against the barrier.

The night crowd gravitated to the region of the barker and ballyhoo, and to the vicinity of the grandstand, before which was enacted in thunder and colored fire, Perry's victory on Lake Erie. The multitude gazed tightly packed through the whole program of free acts, and did not break until the fewest piece of fireworks sputtered its illuminated good-night.

It broke then to take to the Midway—a mad lane of confetti, and alive with the sounds of the jungle. It was the Mardi Gras again. Loony is the right word. Men of respectable standing in their community, bought up poodles for which they had earthly no use, turned on by the cry of the poodle seller:

"Oh, Mamma! Buy me a poodle dog, bring me home a poodle dog. See what you can get for a nickel—no license to pay!"

The Barkers Barked.

The psychology of the Midway crowd defies analysis. It was worth while watching last night. Reason took flight. Men who had in the course of twenty years wasted real money trying to push inanimate puppets. Women who habitually refuse to accept photographs which are the products of less than three separate sittings, consented to enter the picture man's booth and were delighted with the ghastly tin-ypes.

Over all brooded the mystic spirit of gypsy-land. The remnants of the carnival, the creepy tom-tom of cannibal-dance, the discordant sawk of motor horns, the shrill unmusical singing of the old plantation free shows, the yells of the dog sandwich man, the coy invitations of the "ring-the-knife" girls, the strident offers of the "guess-your-weight" men—all of these and a hundred other noises added to the bedlam and drove reason from his habitat.

The pickpockets were abroad, too. Not so numerous as in previous years, but playing their usual game. More than one visitor missed his watch and a half-dozen lost rolls. At the State Fair Police Station, L. L. Velnes, of Raynor, Va., reported that he had been relieved of a gold watch and chain valued at $45. Wallace Bruce, who lives near Ginter Park, lost $25 in bills taken from his trousers' pocket. A number of others registered complaints.

Parade of Prize Cattle.

The stock event of the day came in the afternoon with the exhibit on the race-course of the cattle which had been awarded prizes. The review was imposing in the extreme, and bore out President Fairfax's statement that the exhibit of beef and dairy cattle this year eclipses all previous displays.

For thirty minutes the ribbon winners paraded in review before the grandstand in a continuous stream. Each animal came fresh from the rubber house, and each wore the silk spoils of the contest. The giant Galloways and dumpy Red Polls comprised a numerous class, and Clyde W. Saunders scored heavily with a group of prize-winning Jerseys. The Herefords, Dutch Belts, Germans, as well as the Virginia dairy breeds, were all well represented.

Healthful Hints

Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

Take one pound of prunes, one-quarter pound of raisins, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, boil in sufficient water to obtain one quart of syrup; cool and mix with an equal amount of Duffy's pure malt whiskey. This simple formula, originally prescribed by Dr. J. L. Klineham, of Toledo, Ohio, will prove very efficient in cases of deranged stomachs, dyspepsia or nausea, and will require no additional drug or flavor.—Advertisement.

DEATH HASTENED BY LOSS OF WIFE

Warner Minor Woodward Passes Away After Illness of Two Weeks.

The funeral of Warner Minor Woodward, who died early yesterday morning, after a short illness, in his apartment at The Chesterfield, will be conducted this afternoon at 4 o'clock from St. James Episcopal Church, Franklin and Birch Streets. He will be buried in Hollywood beside the body of his wife. The following friends of Mr. Woodward have been asked to act as pall-bearers:

Active—E. Lee Powell, Henry G. Elliott, Joseph H. Gordon, Hunsdon Cary, Charles E. Whitlock, L. W. McVeigh, Clarence E. Hughes and James A. Moncure.

Honorary—E. B. Addison, James Caskey, Dr. John N. Upham, William F. Gray, James R. Gordon, R. W. Travers, Henry L. Valentine, Preston Cooke, O. H. Funsten, Murray M. McGuire, Langbourne M. Williams, George C. Jefferson and Howard Swinford.

Mr. Woodward was a son of John Pitt Lee Woodward and Mary Mildred Minor, and was born at "Westwood," Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1841. He was a veteran of the Civil War and senior partner in the lumber firm of Woodward & Son. He had been a member of the vestry of St. James Episcopal Church for years, and was a leading spirit in the building of the new church on Franklin Street. He was a member of the Lodge of St. Albemarle County, August 14, 1